

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
AT SEATTLE

JOELLE CHUNG, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

WASHINGTON INTERSCHOLASTIC
ACTIVITIES ASSOCIATION,

Defendant.

CASE NO. C19-5730-RSM

ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFFS'
MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter comes before the Court on Plaintiffs' Motion for Reconsideration. Dkt. #89. On May 10, 2021, this Court denied Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment. Dkt. #87. Plaintiffs now move the Court to reconsider its order. The Court has determined that response briefing from Defendant is unnecessary. See Local Rules W.D. Wash. LCR 7(h)(3).

II. BACKGROUND

A full background of this case is not necessary given the Court's previous orders in this matter. See Dkt. #87. Plaintiffs Joelle Chung and her brothers J.N.C. and J.D.C., and their teammates A.H.B. and A.A.B., bring this action against Defendant Washington Interscholastic Activities Association ("WIAA") under the Free Exercise Clause and Equal Protection Clause of

1 the U.S. Constitution, the Washington State Constitution, and RCW § 28A.600.200 for failure to 2 accommodate Sabbath observers in its scheduling and administration of high school tennis state 3 championship tournaments. Dkt. #34. Plaintiffs are current and former students at William F.
 4 West High School (“W.F. West”) and Seventh-day Adventists who observe the Sabbath each 5 week. Id. at ¶¶ 1-11.

6 In denying summary judgment, the Court found that material disputes of fact precluded
 7 judgment as a matter of law on Plaintiffs’ claims. The Court also considered a threshold standing
 8 issue, wherein WIAA argued that the minor Plaintiffs lacked standing to challenge WIAA’s future
 9 scheduling of Saturday tournaments. The Court agreed. Dkt. #87 at 6-10. On May 24, 2021, 10 Plaintiffs moved for reconsideration. Dkt. #89.

11 III. DISCUSSION

12 A. Legal Standard

13 “Motions for reconsideration are disfavored.” Local Rules W.D. Wash. LCR 7(h)(1).
 14 “The court will ordinarily deny such motions in the absence of a showing of manifest error in the 15 prior ruling or a showing of new facts or legal authority which could not have been brought to its 16 attention earlier with reasonable diligence.” Id. Plaintiffs move for reconsideration based on (1) 17 new evidence demonstrating that minor Plaintiffs have standing; (2) manifest error in the Court’s 18 legal analysis of Tandon v. Newsom, 141 S. Ct. 1294 (2021); and (3) new legal authority based 19 on the U.S. Supreme Court’s recent decision in Fulton v. City of Philadelphia, 141 S. Ct. 1868 20 (2021). The Court will address each argument in turn.

21 B. Standing for Minor Plaintiffs

22 Under Article III of the U.S. Constitution, federal courts are courts of limited jurisdiction, 23 hearing only live “cases” and “controversies.” Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 559 24 (1992); U.S. Const. art. III, § 2. To satisfy the case-or-controversy requirement, the plaintiff must

1 establish “(1) [A]n ‘injury in fact’ that is (a) concrete and particularized and (b) actual or 2 imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical; (2) the injury is fairly traceable to the challenged action 3 of the defendant; and (3) it is likely, as opposed to merely speculative, that the injury will be 4 redressed by a favorable decision.” Friends of the Earth, Inc. v. Laidlaw Envtl. Servs. (TOC), 5 Inc., 528 U.S. 167, 180–81 (2000). Here, minor Plaintiffs seek prospective relief in the form of 6 rescheduling future state tournaments so that no play takes place between Friday sundown and 7 Saturday sundown, as well as an injunction against WIAA to ensure it does not prohibit Plaintiffs 8 from withdrawing from postseason competition due to religious observance.

9 In denying standing for minor Plaintiffs, none of whom had previously qualified for state, 10 the Court concluded that their injury was merely speculative as opposed to actual or imminent.
 11 Dkt. #87 at 9-10. Specifically, the Court found that statements from the minor Plaintiffs’ tennis 12 coach were insufficient, on their own, to demonstrate that minor Plaintiffs would likely qualify 13 for state such that they would face actual or imminent injury from WIAA’s scheduling decisions.
 14 Id. The Court likewise observed that WIAA rescheduled the 2021 state tournament in light of the 15 COVID-19 pandemic, injecting additional uncertainty into whether the state tournament would 16 be held in the same format in future seasons due to the ongoing public health crisis. Id. at 10.

17 Plaintiffs introduce evidence not available before briefing on summary judgment closed 18 showing that two of the minor Plaintiffs did, in fact, qualify for state but were unable to compete 19 due to WIAA cancelling the state tournament because of the pandemic. On March 19, 2021, 20 Plaintiffs J.N.C. and J.D.C. finished second and third, respectively, in singles competition at the 21 district stage and therefore would have qualified for the 2A state tournament. See Dkt. #89-1 at 22 ¶¶ 2-6.

23 On motions for reconsideration, this district’s local rules define “new facts” as those 24 “which could not have been brought to [the court’s] attention earlier with reasonable diligence.”

1 W.D. Wash. LCR 7(h). “For purposes of a motion for reconsideration, evidence is not ‘new’ if it 2 was in the moving party’s possession or could have been discovered prior to the court’s ruling.”
 3 Cachil Dehe Band of Wintun Indians of Colusa Indian Cmty. v. California, 649 F. Supp. 2d 1063, 4 1070 (E.D. Cal. 2009) (citing Coastal Transfer Co. v. Toyota Motor Sales, 833 F.2d 208, 212 (9th 5 Cir. 1987)); see also Roness v. T-Mobile USA, Inc., No. C18-1030-RSM, 2019 WL 4014314, at 6 *1 (W.D. Wash. Aug. 26, 2019) (For reconsideration of a summary judgment motion, evidence 7 is not “newly discovered” if it could have been discovered with reasonable diligence at the time 8 of summary judgment).

9 Here, Plaintiffs are not entitled to reconsideration of the Court’s summary judgment order 10 based on information they had in their possession well before the Court’s ruling. Although 11 Plaintiffs had ample opportunity to supplement the record between March 19 and May 10, as they 12 did with notices of recent legal decisions, see Dkt. #86, they failed to do so with respect to this 13 factual development. Plaintiffs explain that based on Supreme Court precedent, they “reasonably 14 believed they were not required to prove that the minor Plaintiffs would in fact qualify for the 15 state championship tournament to have standing.” Dkt. #89 at 3 (emphasis in original). Relying 16 on Ne. Fla. Chapter of Assoc. Gen. Contractors of Am. v. City of Jacksonville, they argue that 17 because the WIAA erected a barrier that made it “more difficult for members of one group to 18 obtain a benefit than it is for members of another group,” Plaintiffs here “need not allege that 19 [they] would have obtained the benefit but for the barrier in order to establish standing.” Id.
 20 (quoting 508 U.S. 656, 666 (1993)). In effect, Plaintiffs move for reconsideration based on 21 evidence they had in their possession but believed was not necessary to demonstrating standing 22 for minor Plaintiffs. This is not a proper basis for reconsideration. Marlyn Nutraceuticals, Inc.
 23 v. Mucos Pharma GmbH & Co., 571 F.3d 873, 880–81 (9th Cir. 2009) (Holding that 24

1 a motion for reconsideration should not be used to present evidence that should have been 2 presented previously).

3 Furthermore, to the extent Plaintiffs argue that the Court erred in its analysis of Ne. Fla.
4 Chapter, 508 U.S. 656, the Court finds no manifest error of law warranting reconsideration of its 5 standing analysis. The Court’s holding did not require that minor Plaintiffs show they would “in 6 fact qualify” for state, but it determined that the statements Plaintiffs relied on from their 7 coach failed to demonstrate a “likelihood of qualifying for state such that they [would] face actual 8 or imminent injury” from WIAA’s scheduling decisions. Dkt. #87 at 9. The Court found that 9 Ne. Fla. Chapter and related case Trinity Lutheran Church of Columbia, Inc. v. Comer, 137 S.
10 Ct. 2012 (2017), were inapplicable here. Both cases addressed barriers erected by the government 11 that prevented groups from competing on equal footing in a bidding process, such that the “injury 12 in fact” was the ability to compete on equal footing—not the loss of a contract or denial of a grant.
13 Here, in contrast, WIAA’s Rules 22.2.5 and 22.2.6 allow minor Plaintiffs to compete until a 14 scheduled tournament conflicts with their Sabbath observance. For that reason, minor Plaintiffs 15 compete on equal footing with non-Sabbath observers until that conflict occurs. For the 2021-22
16 postseason schedule, this conflict would only occur if Plaintiffs were to compete in the state 17 championship tournament, making Plaintiffs’ likelihood of competing at state essential to the 18 standing inquiry. Considering these factual distinctions between the instant case and Ne. Fla.
19 Chapter and Trinity Lutheran, the Court finds no manifest error in its previous conclusion that 20 WIAA’s scheduling decision, on its own, is not a “barrier” to competing on equal footing that 21 automatically confers standing for minor Plaintiffs.

22 C. Recent Supreme Court Decisions on General Applicability

23 After briefing on Plaintiffs’ summary judgment motion closed, Plaintiffs filed notices of 24 supplemental authority of recent Ninth Circuit and U.S. Supreme Court decisions related to 1 emergency directives issued during the COVID-19 pandemic. One of these cases, Tandon v.

2 Newsom, found that strict scrutiny applied to a California mandate that restricted gatherings in 3 homes to three households. 141 S. Ct. 1294. The Court determined that Tandon, like the other 4 decisions addressing COVID-19 public health mandates, was inapplicable to the context of 5 WIAA's scheduling decision. Dkt. #87 at 17, n.3.

6 Plaintiffs argue that the Court erred in not applying strict scrutiny under Tandon on the 7 basis that Tandon "did not apply only to religious gatherings" and instead capped all indoor 8 gatherings regardless of the purpose of the gathering. Dkt. #89 at 6. Alternatively, Plaintiffs 9 argue, the Court should hold this motion pending resolution of the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling 10 in Fulton, which was decided on June 17, 2021. See Dkt. #91 at 1 (citing Fulton, 141 S. Ct.
11 1868). Given that Fulton was decided on June 17, 2021, the Court will address both cases herein.

12 i. Tandon v. Newsom

13 Plaintiffs move for reconsideration on the basis that the Supreme Court's recent decision 14 in Tandon requires application of strict scrutiny where government action treats "any comparable 15 secular activity more favorable than religious exercise." Tandon, 141 S. Ct. at 1296 (emphasis in 16 original). This Court found Tandon inapplicable to the WIAA's scheduling decision here, given 17 that it examined a public health mandate that imposed attendance limits on at-home religious 18 gatherings. See Dkt. #87 at 17, n.3. Plaintiffs argue that the Court's previous holding disregarded 19 the full context of the mandate at issue in Tandon, which addressed a blanket restriction on any 20 at-home gathering—whether it be religious or secular. Dkt. #89 at 3-7.

21 The Court finds no error in its previous decision. Although the restriction on at-home 22 gatherings applied to both religious and secular gatherings, the Supreme Court concluded that the 23 public health mandate was not neutral or generally applicable because it treated comparable 24 secular activities more favorably than at-home religious exercise. Specifically, hair salons, retail

1 stores, personal care services, movie theaters, private suites at sporting events and concerts, and 2 indoor restaurants were all permitted to bring together more than three households at a time.
 3 Tandon, 141 S. Ct. at 1297. The Supreme Court explained that “[i]t is unsurprising that such 4 litigants are entitled to relief” where the challenged regulation “contains myriad exceptions and 5 accommodations for comparable activities, thus requiring the application of strict scrutiny.” Id
 6 at 1298 (emphasis added). This Court does not find that “myriad exceptions” for comparable 7 secular activities are present in WIAA’s tournament scheduling and in Rules 22.2.5 and 22.2.6 8 such that strict scrutiny must apply.

9 1. Tournament Scheduling

10 Plaintiffs argue that the exceptions to the Saturday scheduling rule that WIAA carved out 11 for golf and volleyball trigger strict scrutiny as a matter of law under Tandon. However, the 12 exception for volleyball was made for religious, not secular reasons—WIAA was able to 13 accommodate religiously-affiliated schools for the 1B and 2B teams. This leaves golf as the lone 14 secular-based exception to the Saturday scheduling rule due to the unavailability of golf courses 15 on weekends. As an initial matter, this one exception to the Saturday scheduling rule for a 16 comparable secular activity is distinguishable from the “myriad” of secular exceptions at issue in 17 Tandon that required application of strict scrutiny. Moreover, the Court is not persuaded that 18 WIAA’s accommodation for golf is comparable to the accommodation denied to Plaintiffs for 19 tennis. “Whether two activities are comparable for purposes of the Free Exercise Clause must be 20 judged against the asserted government interest that justifies the regulation at issue.” Tandon, 21 141 S. Ct. at 1296. WIAA’s scheduling interests are unique for golf, given that golf courses are 22 unavailable on weekends. If WIAA refused to schedule golf on a day besides Saturday or Sunday, 23 there would be no scheduled tournaments due to lack of available venues. WIAA’s scheduling 24 interests for golf are therefore not comparable to those for sports with available weekend venues,

1 for which WIAA may schedule competition based on its interests in minimizing out-of-school
 2 time for students and coaches and reserving Sunday as a travel-back day. For these reasons, 3 Tandon is inapplicable here.

4 2. Rules 22.2.5 and 22.2.6

5 Plaintiffs also argue that the exceptions in former Rules 22.2.5 and 22.2.6 that allowed 6 withdrawal for injury, illness or unforeseen events require application of strict scrutiny under 7 Tandon. Again, however, these exceptions do not amount to “myriad exceptions and 8 accommodations” for comparable secular activities. As the Court observed in its previous order, 9 “[t]he distinction between approved and non-approved absences under Rule 22.2.5 does not hinge 10 on whether the reason for absence is religiously-based, but whether the reason for the withdrawal 11 is anticipated.” Dkt. #87 at 20 (emphasis added). Withdrawals due to unforeseen conflicts do 12 not undermine fair competition to the same extent as expected withdrawals, the latter of which 13 are more unfair to athletes who could have participated in postseason but for the withdrawing 14 athlete. See Dkt. #58 at ¶ 16. Accordingly, the Court declines to find that withdrawal for 15 unexpected reasons is “comparable” to withdrawals for expected reasons—whether secular or 16 religious—such that Tandon would apply.

17 ii. Fulton v. City of Philadelphia

18 Finally, Plaintiffs argue that the Supreme Court’s recent decision in Fulton, 141 S. Ct.
 19 1868, may expound on Tandon’s reasoning and will consider whether Employment Div., Dept. of 20 Human Resources of Ore. v. Smith, 494 U.S. 872 (1990) should be overruled. Because the 21 Supreme Court has since issued its decision in Fulton, the Court will consider it herein.

22 Fulton addressed whether the city of Philadelphia’s refusal to contract with a 23 state-licensed Catholic-affiliated foster care agency unless it agreed to certify same-sex couples 24 as foster parents violated the Free Exercise and Free Speech Clauses of the First Amendment.

1 The majority found that the city’s non-discrimination provision was not generally applicable, and 2 thus subject to strict scrutiny, because it incorporated a system of individual exemptions made 3 available at the sole discretion of the City. Indeed, the language of the anti-discrimination 4 provision expressly barred providers from rejecting prospective foster or adoptive parents “for 5 Services based upon . . . their sexual orientation . . . unless an exception is granted by the 6 Commissioner or the Commissioner’s designee, in his sole discretion.” Id. at 1878 (emphasis 7 added). For the reasons set forth below, the Court finds that Fulton does not warrant 8 reconsideration in the instant case.

9 As an initial matter, the majority in Fulton declined to revisit Smith and concluded that 10 the city burdened the foster care agency’s religious exercise “through policies that do not meet 11 the requirement of being neutral and generally applicable” under Smith. Fulton, 141 S. Ct. at 12 1877. Furthermore, to the extent Plaintiffs anticipated that the Supreme Court would elaborate 13 on Tandon, that case was only cited in one concurrence that disagreed with the majority’s decision 14 to avoid addressing Smith. See id. at 1926–31. Accordingly, Fulton does not alter this Court’s 15 analysis under Smith or Tandon.

16 Turning to whether Fulton alters this Court’s analysis of general applicability with respect 17 to the WIAA’s tournament scheduling and withdrawal rules, the Court finds no manifest error in 18 its previous decision in light of new legal authority. The challenged provision in Fulton is readily 19 distinguishable from the rules at issue here. Regarding WIAA’s tournament scheduling, Plaintiffs 20 argued at summary judgment that WIAA’s handbook, which contained no “particularized or 21 objective criteria” for scheduling postseason competition, evinced WIAA’s unfettered and purely 22 discretionary authority in its tournament scheduling decisions. See Dkt. #53 at 16. In contrast to 23 the provision at issue in Fulton, which expressly provides for exceptions made at the “sole 24 discretion” of the Commissioner, WIAA’s handbook merely affirms WIAA’s authority to determine the sites, dates, and formats of postseason tournaments. This Court rejected Plaintiffs' contention that the handbook evinced a system of individualized exemptions simply because it failed to enumerate the specific criteria guiding WIAA's scheduling decisions. See Dkt. #87 at 13. Noting that WIAA asserted several "particularized, objective criteria" that governed its scheduling decisions, the Court declined to conclude as a matter of law that WIAA's Saturday scheduling policy was open-ended and discretionary such that strict scrutiny applied. Id. at 13-14. Fulton does not change this analysis.

Turning to WIAA's former Rule 22.2.5 and 22.2.6, Plaintiffs argued at summary judgment that the exception to its prohibition on withdrawals for "unforeseen events" amounted to a system of individualized exemptions. Dkt. #53 at 24-25. In rejecting Plaintiffs' argument, this Court noted that the exception does not apply to "exceptions for objectively defined categories of persons." Dkt. #87 at 24 (citing Axson-Flynn v. Johnson, 356 F.3d 1277, 1298 (10th Cir. 2004)). Because the category "unforeseen events" limits the exception to the objectively-defined category of unexpected conflicts, the Court reasoned, that category did not trigger strict scrutiny based on the Sherbert "individualized exemption" exception. Nothing in Fulton changes that analysis.

IV. CONCLUSION

Having reviewed Plaintiffs' Motion, the declaration attached thereto, and the remainder of the record, it is hereby ORDERED that Plaintiffs' Motion for Reconsideration, Dkt. #89, is DENIED.

Dated this 23rd day of July, 2021.
